Aaron D. Paker (253) 838-3454 (253) 237-7036 (direct) (253) 838-9268 (fax) apaker@lifepointlaw.com		I am an elder law attorney. As a firm we handle estate planning, Life Planning (EP on steroids to look at retirement holistically over the course of 12-18 months), probate, and Crisis (mostly Medicaid LTC). I currently handle the probates but hope to train one of our associates soon. I am most recognized for my Medicaid planning and applications. I am on the Board of Directors for the Washington Academy of Elder Law Attorneys (WAELA) and both that organization and the WSBA Elder Law Section generally recognize me as the leading authority for Medicaid work, especially after a recent fair hearing that resulted in overturning denials for at least 12 applicants, including 9 that were not my clients. The brief from that hearing is being used by the State to help create training for the financial workers reviewing applications. I used to teach early childhood and became a paralegal when a career change was necessary. I wanted to work with kids or civil litigation but a combination of many circumstances landed me in one elder law firm that convinced me that I hated elder law and then my current one. I could not spell Medicaid correctly but was told I needed to become a specialist. I realized that I loved it and after 6 months I was reviewing the attorneys' work and suggesting better options and within a year and half my boss told me to go to law school so that I could give advice directly to clients instead of explaining it to my supervisors so that they could give it to the clients. The satisfaction of seeing an immediate impact on the lives of my clients keeps me going on a daily basis.

We regularly advise on: • Mergers and acquisitions • Business succession and exit planning • Corporate joint ventures and shareholder agreements • Owner disputes and governance matters Most of our transactional work involves companies valued between $3 million and $30 million, with an emphasis on founder-led or family-owned businesses navigating growth, transition, or partial sale. Although we're based in Portland, Oregon, and Vancouver, Washington, we have a high concentration of clients in Southern Oregon, and a strong corporate team (four lawyers) admitted and operating in New York. Our attorneys also handle related litigation and corporate disputes—often in Oregon, New York, or Delaware courts, or in arbitration forums. If you encounter clients with business issues that require strategic depth—whether it's structuring a deal, navigating complex ownership arrangements, or resolving a business dispute—we're happy to be a referral resource.

I started in maritime on the injury defense side, but I switched sides and found my "sweet spot" on the plaintiff side. Another great place to build your referral network is ProVisors. The allowed me to build my referral list to not only include attorneys, but also other professional service areas my clients often need. If you're looking to build your trusted referral list, definitely check out ProVisors.
AnnMichelle G. Hart HartLaw, PLLC PO Box 25005 Federal Way, WA 98093 (206) 641-6014 HartLawPLLC@gmail.com www.yourattorneywithheart.com		I'm working in Estate Planning. I love helping people discover why estate planning is so important. I also work with people who've built a small business (sole proprietor or single member LLC) I mesh their estate planning with what they envision for their company in the future - Do they want it sold? Do they want a family member take it over? Or do they expect its demise when they're gone? I help them figure it out. I work mostly virtually so my clients can be statewide. There are areas of WA with little access to legal guidance and I'm available remotely to bridge that gap.

I come from an employment law and professional responsibility background, as well as years spent directing nonprofits and a small state ombuds agency. I love supporting clients through those sticky questions about what's reasonable and how they can be more welcoming and inclusive (or just respond to a very strange request). I also enjoy questions that intersect with public policy, whether it's, "Am I lobbying right now?" or "Wait, the government is making me do this and there's no funding for it?" My practice includes: • Nonprofit formation and securing/maintaining tax-exempt status • Corporate governance and board advisory work • Tax compliance and planning (including UBTI, operational test, excise tax issues, excess benefit analysis and correction, as well as and charitable contribution issues) • Compliance with nationwide charitable solicitation and fundraising laws • Mergers, affiliations, joint ventures, and reorganizations within the nonprofit sector • Structuring relationships among related entities, fiscal sponsorships, and collaborative arrangements • Serving as outside general counsel or strategic advisor to mission-driven organizations I am licensed in Arizona and Washington and I travel regularly between the two states. When I am in Washington, my practice is based in Tacoma. Most of my professional network remains in Arizona, where I spent many years practicing at a large firm. Because my practice is intentionally very narrow, I rely heavily on the expertise of other professionals when clients come to me with matters outside my sweet spot. I deeply appreciate having strong referral partners—particularly in Washington, where I am continuing to build my network. The types of matters I refer out include litigation, ERISA, landlord/tenant matters, family law, immigration, real estate disputes, employment issues, intellectual property, estate planning, and other specialized areas. Advising Nonprofit, Tax-exempt, and Socially Responsible Companies.

Before becoming an attorney, I spent more than 15 years as a property and casualty adjuster with State Farm, which gives me a unique perspective on claim handling, coverage issues, and insurer practices. I'm happy to assist clients anywhere in Washington State and always appreciate being considered as a referral resource.
Heather Pearce Campbell Pearce Law, PLLC (206) 395.5878 (mobile) www.pearcelawservices.com heather@pearcelawservices.com		While I have years of experience that also includes real estate, land use, and construction defect litigation (for the first decade), I was also supporting small businesses with a variety of services alongside. And about a decade into my career my practice shifted even more heavily into business law, pretty exclusively focusing on the digital and online business space: So my "sweet spot" is supporting small businesses, particularly online and expert-based businesses (many licensed professionals in this category) that are international in reach (i.e. serving clients around the world).This includes: • business formation & governance • online legal protections (terms / privacy / disclosures), this includes marketing & regulatory compliance • essential business contracts required to run these businesses & build teams • IP assessments & TM & Copyright registrations • general business legal strategy, and • dispute resolution It's a little like fractional (in-house) legal counsel but for businesses in the $1-5M or 1-10M / year range. These generally will never be the googles of the world, but they are often information and IP heavy and have a variety of important legal needs to be addressed. Obviously the latest in this space is AI trends and a lot of small businesses are requiring advice on how to use and implement AI safely in their business as well.

Lamp Gray Beard Legal Solutions, PLLC 3220 76th Drive NE Marysville, WA 98270 (564) 249-1588 www.graybeardlegal.com Jesse.lamp@graybeardlegal.com		I am fairly new in practice, but I am tailoring my firm to focus specifically on tribal law in tribal courts. Right now, I handle mostly criminal defense matters, but also work on exclusion orders (basically a trespass from tribal property action), drug task force seizure defense, and I am beginning to work on appeals. I am licensed in Tulalip and Lummi Tribal Courts currently, but working to expand that list. I am open to taking cases in any tribal court from Tulalip to the Canadian border. If a potential client has a tribal law/court question and you don't have a better referral, I am happy to discuss the case with them and see if I would be willing to take them on. I am open to other areas of law within the tribal court system if there is a need. Outside of tribal court/law, I will take seizure defense cases (drug task force seizures) in Snohomish or Skagit County, and WDFW appeals/admin actions.

Within these areas, my "sweet spots" include: 1. Pet replevins/ownership disputes - non-marital disagreements over the ownership/possession of a pet. 2. Business formation and contract drafting for equine (or canine) businesses and professionals who, for example, train, breed, and/or operate a facility. I handle just about any equine or canine related contract, but the "sweet spot" would be someone who is a trainer or runs a boarding facility etc, and they want to "mitigate risk" by setting up an LLC, and get contracts drafted for operations (e.g. agreements for boarding and/or training, liability releases, drafting rules and procedures, contracts with horse trainers, and many more etc). I also handle some litigation and equine or canine disputes (civil only). Essentially, I'm a general practice (civil) attorney with an emphasis in horses, dogs, and other animals. P.S. If anyone on this list accepts veterinary negligence cases, please let me know. I get a lot of calls for those. I can screen them a little, but I do not handle vet mal cases.

My sweet spot is wrongful death and serious personal injury. I do all kinds of personal injury cases and have a background as a former deputy prosecutor and an insurance defense lawyer. For the past thirty years I have focused only on representing plaintiffs. My partner Karen Scudder and I focus only on injury cases. These cases come in all stripes, such as car, motorcycle, truck, bicycle, or pedestrian accidents. Uber and Lyft cases are something we do. We also handle slip and falls, premises liability cases, dog bites, and catastrophic product liability cases. We represent injured persons generally in King, Pierce, Kitsap, Thurston, and Snohomish counties. Many of our clients do not have the time or wherewithal to travel to Seattle or Tacoma and find our location convenient in Kent. We offer in-person, telephone, facetime, and Zoom consultations. In our work, we get to know our clients and how they have been impacted, and are happy to assist them. We always appreciate being referred cases from lawyers, friends, or former clients.

I am a former general counsel of a couple of Biotechs and founded a health services company as CEO so I come to my clients with significant entrepreneurial, business, regulatory, and operating experience. Worked at large firms before I went in-house. I have industry experience in healthcare, biotech, cleantech, private equity, and software, including AI and business SaaS. I split my time between my hometown of Seattle and my adopted hometown of San Francisco. Licensed in WA (since 1993) and CA, with firm members also licensed in MT and TX. I refer everything else out - litigation, employment, patent work, tax, and commercial disputes are areas of regular referral.

Jordan Goddard (206) 631-1720 www.jordangoddardlaw.com jordan@jordangoddardlaw.com		My sweet spot is federal court appeals of social security disability denials. I've done this work, almost exclusively, for 16 years. Before going into private practice, I was the Ninth Circuit Appellate Coordinator for the Social Security Administration. In 2019, I received a written commendation from Ninth Circuit Judge M. Margaret McKeown for "excellent advocacy" and "making a special contribution to the court." I'm also the current representative for the plaintiffs' bar on the WDWA social security bench-bar committee. I've been told that other lawyers in my field have nicknamed me "Darth Vader."

Judith Kampf, JD, LL.M. Kampf Law Group, PLLC PO Box 30040 Spokane, WA 99223-3000 (509) 590-6400 JudithKampf@aol.com		Sweet Spots: After spending a couple of years in-house with a major insurance company, I earned an LL.M. degree in taxation and have since been engaged in a practice spanning areas of Estate planning, estate tax law and business law focused on small and closely held businesses. Estate Planning; Estate Tax: I provide personalized "holistic" style estate planning services, helping with basic or more complex wills, revocable and irrevocable trusts, SNT's, durable powers of attorney and other related documents, explaining options and choices available to address the client's unique family situation. I also assist clients in eliminating or minimizing state and/or federal estate taxes. Business Issues: I help clients with business and tax law issues such as business formations, day to day contracts, and sales/purchases of a business. I particularly enjoy assisting with succession planning especially for family-owned businesses. For business clients who are buying or selling businesses, I assist with real estate transactions related to the transaction (transfer deeds, REETA's, leases). Estate Administration / Probate: I work with clients who have had a death in the family, dealing with issues of whether to open a probate, transfer of assets, creditors' claims, and collection under beneficiary designations. Location: I meet with clients by appointment in Browne's Addition near downtown Spokane. I serve clients in Spokane and surrounding counties in eastern Washington, but I also work with clients in the greater Seattle area, using phone, Zoom and occasional in-person meetings at the client's office or home. I will schedule home appointments if the client cannot travel.

Julie K. Fowler Law Office of Julie K. Fowler, P.S. 14205 SE 36th Street, Ste 100 Bellevue, WA 98006 (425) 990-9975 julie@juliefowlerlaw.com		I primarily practice family law in King, Snohomish, and Pierce Counties. I occasionally practice in other counties. I have practiced for 26 years. I also handle non-taxable estate planning, and some probate. My niche is handling high conflict divorces (though I can't say I always enjoy it 😊). I am also frequently referred cases that fail the collaborative law model and need to go to court. These all bring me sufficient income. What I really enjoy is advocating for the person who's been told (or just believes) their situation is hopeless when it's not. I enjoy empowering those clients to push through the fear and to make the decisions right for them.

I conduct workplace investigations for non-profit, public, and private sector organizations of all sizes and industries, primarily related to employee concerns of discrimination, sexual harassment, retaliation, bullying, safety, and other inappropriate workplace behavior. I gather information through interviews and document review, and then synthesize and consider the information to make factual findings related to organizational policies and values. My impartial investigation is an important limited purpose engagement to inform the legal advice an organization's primary counsel provides.

Kevin Hochhalter Olympic Appeals PLLC 4570 Avery Ln SE #C-217 Lacey, WA 98503 (360) 763-8008 www.olympicappeals.com kevin@olympicappeals.com		I handle all manner of appeals, primarily at the Washington Court of Appeals and Supreme Court. I have built my practice, Olympic Appeals, on the idea that we will all be happiest and most fulfilled if we can focus on our own "sweet spots" (to borrow Mark's terminology). Appeals are the part of legal practice that I love most and do best. I am here to take to the burden of an appeal off your back so you can focus on what you do best. I handle any subject matter: civil, criminal, or family law. I enjoy learning new areas of the law and presenting the issues in a simple, concise manner that generalist appellate judges will understand. We handle cases statewide, in all three divisions of the Court of Appeals.

Lauren Burgon Law Office of Lauren Burgon PLLC 3217 44th Ave SW Seattle WA 98116 (206) 488-3391 (mobile) Lauren@LBurgon.com www.lburgon.com		I have a solo practice based in West Seattle, where I have lived for more than 30 years. My practice focuses on business law and the needs of business owners, especially small and micro businesses with only an owner or two and perhaps a few employees and independent contractors. I offer a free 30-minute call or meeting so prospective clients and I can get to know each other a bit and figure out how we can work together to protect their businesses. Meetings are usually via telephone or Zoom for everyone's convenience. My services include: • Setting up and maintaining business entities • Business consulting • Advising on employment matters • Drafting strong and easily understood contracts • Reviewing, revising, and advising on existing contracts • Reviewing, revising, and advising on commercial leases • Assisting with the purchase or sale of a business • Filing and maintaining trademark registrations

Fang Banyan Legal Counsel PLLC 1037 NE 65th St #7 Seattle, WA 98115 (206) 360-9681 lfang@banyancounsel.com www.banyancounsel.com		I do employment law compliance work for employers – mostly small to mid-sized businesses and nonprofits. I am licensed to practice in Washington and California, so a lot of my clients are multistate employers. My practice is mostly advice and counsel, and I represent employers in audits, investigations, and agency complaints and charges before local, state, and federal agencies (L&I, ESD, WSHRC, DOL, etc.) in Washington and California. I do some defense-side employment litigation strategy and support (but I have stopped taking on full litigation work because my firm is too small to handle that). I serve as outside general counsel to a limited number of nonprofits and family-owned businesses. I also handle workplace investigations for employers that are not my clients when I have bandwidth. Things I don't do (and I refer out or would love to refer out): • Employee-side employment law matters; • Entity formations – I do this on a limited basis, only if needed for companies to start hiring employees; • Business partner disputes – I don't do these anymore, after one case that lasted for 7 years; • Business purchases and sales – I will provide employment-related support for these transactions if needed, but I don't handle the purchase or sales; and • Workers' compensation.

I really enjoy offering a la carte style services especially strategy sessions like how to prepare for a motion (or a motion hearing) or mediation or trial (pro se). I advise clients whether they have a strong argument or not in some cases, whether they should pursue a certain matter or issue. I generally do not ask for an advance fee deposit and have a pay as you go arrangement with clients. I offer this in family law matters as well as minor guardianship matters. I'm really good at (at least I think I'm really good at it) calming clients down. I've also started offering pro se mediation services in family law. As a litigator, my longest mediation I attended was a 16-hour session. I don't do that. I offer short guided sessions and really help the parties work through their issues, one at a time. And, I LOVE talking to other practitioners who are ready to launch their own practice! Let's talk.

As you might imagine, this involves formation services, corporate compliance/maintenance, contracts, risk assessment/management (especially for NPOs), general counsel, and board education. Out of all that, my favorite pieces are parsing contracts for clients and helping NPOs craft bylaws they can actually understand and comply with. I know what I don't know, so while I give 20,000 ft advice about employment, tax, and IP law, I refer out anything that gets niche. As I tell my clients, you don't go to a cardiologist for a knee replacement. My client base is broad but via word of mouth, I've ended up regularly working with tabletop game designers, arts NPOs, mental health practitioners, and orgs in the sex-positive and alt-lifestyle spaces (it's surprising how often I'm asked for queer, poly, or kink-friendly referrals). Finally, my practice has been 100% virtual since 2019.

Rose, has been around since 1991 and I have clients throughout the State. My practice is devoted primarily to representation of individuals on the full range of employment issues from the beginning to the end of the relationship with the exception of II/worker's compensation benefit claims - I represent individuals in public and private employment settings and have a particular focus on resolving such conflicts early and through ADR methods. Of course, I do litigate appropriate cases when other methods fail. I frequently associate and am always available to consult with other attorneys on such matters and perform research, briefing and analysis for peers when needed. Occasionally, I provide advice and counsel and directly represent small employers. I do occasionally stray into other administrative law matters as well as discrimination and civil rights claims but not police misconduct or prisoner rights matters.
Paul Okner Fremont Law PLLC 3429 Fremont Pl.
